Walking through Livestock Disease Trends and Diagnostic Testing at the New ADRDL

This year's James Bailey Herd Health Conference will feature South Dakota's new Animal Disease Research and Diagnostic Laboratory (ADRDL) and the latest information on livestock diseases in the region.

Morning: Reports and presentations from ADRDL faculty on trends in:

- Cattle respiratory disease
- Calf scours and enteric disease
- Abortions and reproductive disease
- Sheep and goat diseases
- Swine diseases
- Viral pathogens (BVDV, IBR, etc.)

Afternoon: Participants will walk through a case at the new ADRDL, visiting the various sections that contribute information, culminating with the final diagnosis and discussions at the end of the day.
