Sunday, August 11th

- 3:00-6:00 Pre-Conference Seminar: Communicating with Farmers and Ranchers Under Stress
South Dakota's number one industry is agriculture, yet farming and ranching are high-stress professions. Helping farmers and ranchers – and their families – identify and manage mental and physical stress and fatigue is a role that veterinarians can play in their day-to-day interactions with them. The SDSU Extension Farm & Ranch Stress Management team is offering a seminar for veterinarians that will focus on communicating with farmers and ranchers under stress, and helping them understand the resources available to them.
